A 24-year-old man, identified by the police as Qureshi, was arrested for allegedly transporting 1.5 crore and 11,000 kilograms of gutkha and pan masala海上, said a police official.

According to the police, Qureshi was transporting the contraband on a fishing boat from the Arabian Sea to the high seas.

The police had seized the contraband from the fishing boat in the Arabian Sea.

The investigation is continuing.

CM should fix blame for poor handling of BoM case

In a move to improve the handling of the public's issues, the government of Maharashtra has announced a new scheme under which citizens can directly contact the chief minister's office to resolve their problems.

The scheme, known as the "CM Helpdesk," will allow citizens to file complaints and get solutions to their problems in a single window.

The scheme is expected to be implemented across the state in the coming weeks.

"We are committed to providing better services to citizens," said the government.

"This scheme will enable us to address the problems of citizens in a timely manner," added the government.

"We are confident that this scheme will bring about a positive change in the way we handle public issues," concluded the government.
